ANTI-COVID SHIELD

Since the worldwide coronavirus pandemic broke out in March of 2020, our administrative and management teams made sure to keep everyone safe and secure. The work-from-home approach was fully supported and each member of the team had the resources to set up their space at home and continue work without disruptions. After the lockdown was loosened in some countries, all MaxBill offices were set up to the highest safety standards according to the particular area's guidelines.

Immediate response procedures in case of one or more team members getting infected were set in place. We automated such procedures with help of HR software to eliminate the lengthy leave approval cycle, ensuring speed and efficiency. While we made sure that the office environment was protected, the remote work option was open to those who chose to self-isolate.
